Sixty-three percent of residents' income falls at or below 200% of the Federal poverty line – $24,600 for a family of four. Almost half of The Set population qualifies for Medicaid – 47.7%. Development pressure exerted by the success of eastern Delray Beach has caused the median home prices in The Set to rise significantly faster than the County and City from. EBLB Pop-up Produce: This program addresses food insecurity, lack of nutrition education, community health, while also providing a healthy food solution for those in food deserts with low income or no income at all. The Pop-Up Produce program is where we add a healthy eating component to a local community event. We do this by prepackaging a set number of produce bags to distribute at an event or providing a "farmers market" set up with bags and allow the patrons to fill a produce bag based on household size. For both set ups we will collect the numbers of individuals/households that we are serving for our data. The bags will include about 6-8 different fruits or vegetables that will last for about 2-weeks minimum because it is freshly ordered. This is also a way for individuals to learn about our grocery assistance if they are truly food insecure. We will only partner with events catering to low income or moderate income families and we will identify that by working with the city of delray, parks and recreation, the housing authority and the nonprofit	50,000.00	10,000.00

Milagro Center's STARS (Standing Together Achieving Recognition and Success) K-5, Junior Teen Leadership (Middle School), Teen Leadership (High School), Milagro Center Alumni Association (high school graduates) Programs are year-round cultural arts and education-based out-of-school time programs. They are designed to get and keep youth on track in school to achieve annual grade promotion, ultimately leading to high school graduation, and to help each youth identify and develop his or her own special talents and skills as well as their abilities to communicate and live life to their full potentials. Milagro Center strives to match each student with a mentor through our Mentoring Miracles Program, and, through our ARTreach Program, we further our commitment to exposing at-risk youth to the arts by opening our doors to neighboring community childcare centers, schools, and youth centers and inviting them to experience our in-house professional art gallery, known as "The BluePrint Gallery".
