Description of Work: The RSQ PAK is a device design to prevent passenger entrapments if the building has a power failure. If there is a building power failure and no backup elevator power, the elevator would shut down in between floors and cause an entrapment. By installing these RSQ PAK devices the elevators would have power to run down to lower landings to allow passengers to exit and avoid being trapped. KONE proposes the following scope of work during regular working hours of the elevator trade:

- KONE will install one (1) new RSQ PAK Battery Lowering Device.
- KONE will verify proper connection between RSQ PAK and Controller.
- KONE will verify proper connection between RSQ PAK and mainline disconnect.
- KONE will return the elevator to normal operation.

Benefits:

- Reduces entrapments – during power outages or brownouts, passengers can safely exit the elevator reducing entrapment
- Increases safety – reduces entrapments increases the safety of your passengers
- Reduces your claims risk
- Reduces operating expenses – eliminating the need for manual intervention to evacuate entrapped passengers may reduce expenses for service requests that not covered under your maintenance agreement

Battery powered provides sufficient power to gently lower the elevator to the main egress floor and open the doors automatically so passengers can exit safely without assistance, helping to prevent entrapments. When normal power is restored, automatically resets without manual intervention, and recharges for the next time it is needed.

Work by others: Customer must hire an electrician to install an auxiliary contact on the main disconnect switch to tell the EBD that the disconnect was pulled, and it's not an actual power failure. Without this you can back feed a service person causing electrocution. Electrician fees are not included in this proposal.

Total Cost: $24,711.41
