Invesco Small Cap

Performance Review

- Invesco has lagged the Russell 2000 Index over the past year. Most of the underperformance occurred in 3Q25 (+4.9% versus +12.4%), when the portfolio was underexposed to more speculative, higher-volatility, and lower-quality segments that led the market.

- During 3Q25, 138 names were up more than 50%, many of which were highly speculative with no earnings or revenue (Source: FactSet). The fund's underweight to these names served as a 5.9% headwind.

Nomura Small Cap

Performance Review

- Nomura has lagged the Russell 2000 Index over the past year, largely due to weaker relative results in 2025. From the April 8, 2025, market low through year-end, the Russell 2000 gained 41.4%, with the rally led by lower-quality, higher-risk stocks that were less aligned with its investment approach.

- Earnings Quality and Beta were the largest factor detractors, collectively accounting for nearly 450 basis points of relative underperformance over the past year.
