Mayor Dan Roe, said the “amicable” decision was prompted by both Malinen’s and Roseville City Council members’ desire for a “change.”

“It’s really not based so much on performance issues as it is on both the council and (Malinen) realizing we’re not any longer a good fit,” Roe said. “We’ve had a good record of success as a city under his leadership, and we expect he will continue to have success in his future endeavors.”
