Being recognized as an accredited agency is a privilege and an honor, and although Maria was instrumental in the Department's success, she is always quick to recognize and give credit to her entire workforce. She believes that without the knowledge, expertise and professionalism of all its employees, the Department's accredited status could not have been achieved. Maria serves as an example of department-wide teamwork whether it's conducting in-house training on the accreditation process or ensuring that department activities are CFA-compliant. Employees will seek her guidance to ensure a new practice or policy revision is being done in accordance with accreditation standards.
